The Fate of Moramania

Glossary

Peoples, Species & Creatures

Humans
One of the peoples inhabiting Moramania. Humans are physically weaker than many magical species and historically relied heavily on magic to compensate for this disadvantage. Witches are humans particularly skilled in practising magic.

Giants
One of Moramania's most physically powerful peoples and historically its dominant race. Giants possess tremendous strength and durability and can assume human form. Corax, Atlas and Prometheus belong wholly or partly to this race.

Hybrids
Individuals born from parents belonging to different compatible races. Only certain combinations of races are capable of producing hybrids. Atlas and Prometheus are human–giant hybrids, while Dandylion is another known hybrid. Hybrids can inherit extraordinary abilities from their ancestry.

Fairies
A magical people, referred to in some parts of the story as jinn. Fairies possess healing dust. The strength of this dust varies, with Princess Raina possessing exceptionally powerful healing dust because of her royal status.

Merfolk
An amphibious magical people capable of surviving both in water and on land. They possess supernatural charming and mind-controlling abilities. Magical protection can defend a person against these effects. Selene belongs to this species.

Leprechauns
A magical people possessing the traditional characteristics and abilities associated with mythological leprechauns. John is a leprechaun.

Púca
A magical shapeshifting species whose natural appearance resembles a cloud of black ink. Púcas are generally friendly creatures, a characteristic that frequently puts them in danger. Their lifespan is roughly comparable to that of humans. Ordinary physical attacks are not necessarily effective against them, although certain magical blades can harm them. Balaid is a Púca.

Dullahan
An extremely rare supernatural species. Each Dullahan possesses a unique supernatural power rather than all members sharing one standard ability. Hawthorne is a Dullahan.

Griffins
Mythological creatures possessing the standard anatomy and abilities traditionally associated with griffins. Apollo is a griffin.

Ogres
Large humanoid creatures broadly resembling the traditional fairy-tale ogre, particularly the type represented by Shrek. Samina is an ogre.

Golems
Artificial beings created to serve their creators. Golems are manufactured rather than naturally born. Ori is a giant clay golem created by Master Moses. Although created as servants, the story demonstrates through Ori that a golem can develop an independent sense of identity and purpose.

Unicorns
Magical horses whose supernatural abilities originate from their horns. Every unicorn's horn is unique and consequently grants its owner different abilities. Savannah is a talking unicorn.

Dragons / Titans
A magical species capable of assuming human form. Dragons and titans refer to the same kind of being within Moramania rather than two separate species. Dandylion possesses dragon ancestry and can transform into a dragon.

Crimson Ants
Creatures associated with the dangerous Crimson Ant Poison, which played a central role in the Sam Bridge Incident.

Crimson Beetles
Dangerous creatures capable of attacking in large numbers. Prometheus and Apollo once remained behind to fight an army of them while allowing their companions to escape.

Magic & Supernatural Concepts

Magic
A supernatural force widely present throughout Moramania. Humans particularly depend upon magical practice because they lack the natural physical advantages possessed by many other races.

Witch
A human who has become highly skilled in practising magic. Witches are therefore not a separate species.

Diblo
A magical warrior bond connecting two warriors. The ritual causes the bonded warriors to share the same heart and soul. Each can feel the other's pain, sense what the other is doing and perceive whether the other is safe or in danger. John is Prometheus's Diblo.

The bond is powerful enough to allow John to interact with Prometheus's Sacred Blade despite lacking giant blood. Doing so remains extremely dangerous and can kill him.

Soul Twins
The state created between warriors through the Diblo bond. The two remain separate individuals but are supernaturally connected through a shared heart and soul.

Life Energy
The fundamental supernatural energy contained within living beings. It encompasses their physical health, stamina, lifespan, magical power and soul. The Sacred and Cursed Blades can manipulate this energy in different ways.

Magical Coma
A supernatural state of unconsciousness from which someone cannot simply be awakened physically. Prometheus enters such a state after his defeat by Atlas. Elma determines that restoring him requires reaching his consciousness and restoring his desire to continue.

Entering the Consciousness / Mindwalking
Magic allowing someone to enter the consciousness of a person trapped within a magical coma. Elma uses this ability to allow Prometheus's companions to communicate with him.

Shapeshifting
The supernatural ability to alter physical form. Púcas possess shapeshifting naturally. Other transformations exist among specific races, but transformation should not be assumed to be universal.

Human Form
A human-like physical form assumed by certain supernatural species. Giants and dragons are among the beings explicitly capable of assuming such a form.

Giant Form
The full physical form of a giant or giant hybrid. Atlas and Prometheus can abandon their human appearances and assume their giant forms when necessary.

Fairy Dust
Magical dust naturally possessed by fairies and capable of healing injuries. All fairies possess healing dust, although its strength varies. Princess Raina's royal status gives her particularly powerful dust.

Merfolk Charm
The supernatural ability of merfolk to charm or mentally control others. Magical protection can prevent or resist this influence.

Unicorn Horn
The source of a unicorn's individual supernatural abilities. No two horns are necessarily identical in power, making the magical abilities of individual unicorns unique.

Hybrid Magic

Hybrid Birth
The birth of a child produced by compatible parents belonging to different races. Only certain races can successfully produce hybrids.

Hybrid Birth Curse
A magical phenomenon affecting every species currently known to have produced hybrids with humans. The nonhuman parent dies as a consequence of producing the hybrid, regardless of whether that parent is male or female.

The phenomenon is magical rather than biological. Whether it can be prevented is unknown.

First Hybrids
Atlas and Prometheus, the twin sons of the human Adina and the giant Corax. Their birth became an event of enormous magical and historical significance.

Adina's Power
The extraordinary magical power contained within Adina's remains. It exists because she became the first person to give birth to hybrids. Her remains therefore became magically unique after her death.

Magical Weapons & Objects

Twin Blades of Corax
Two magical swords forged from the hardened skeletal remains of King Corax after his death. The Oracle Witch forged the weapons and one eventually belonged to each of Corax's sons.

The blades reflect the fundamentally different natures of Atlas and Prometheus.

Sacred Blade
Prometheus's sword and one of the Twin Blades of Corax. It can cut almost anything and temporarily borrows life energy from surrounding living beings to increase its wielder's power.

It does not permanently steal this energy, and sufficiently powerful creatures can resist its attempt to draw from them.

Cursed Blade
Atlas's sword and the counterpart of the Sacred Blade. Rather than borrowing life energy, it takes life energy from surrounding creatures and transfers that power to Atlas.

Sword Armour
The final transformation associated with the Twin Blades. The sword merges with the wielder's body and manifests as magical armour.

Atlas and Prometheus can achieve the complete transformation. John, through his Diblo connection to Prometheus, manages to manifest an incomplete version using the Sacred Blade, although doing so places his life at risk.

Key and Lock
The symbolic and magical functions of the Twin Blades in relation to Adina's power. Atlas's Cursed Blade acts as the key, allowing her power to be taken. Prometheus's Sacred Blade acts as the lock, capable of sealing that power away.

Magical Tree
An all-knowing magical tree located in Victoria Forest. It can answer any question presented to it, but each individual normally receives only one question during their lifetime.

After Maimi and Savannah die without using their questions, the tree allows Prometheus access to theirs. Its origin is not important to the story.

Prophecy & Fate

The Prophecy
A prophecy delivered by the royal oracle foretelling that the age of giant domination would end before the beginning of the seventh century and that humanity would somehow be responsible.

Corax's attempt to understand this prophecy ultimately results in his relationship with Adina and the births of Atlas and Prometheus.

Fate
A central force and theme of the story. Fate establishes an eventual destination without necessarily determining the exact path by which it will be reached.

This distinction is central to Atlas and Prometheus: the Age of Giants will end, but the important question is how it ends and which brother brings about that ending.

The End of the Age of Giants
The inevitable fulfilment of the prophecy concerning giant supremacy. The Magical Tree warns Prometheus that he must ensure the age ends through him rather than through Atlas.

Titles, Roles & Groups

King of the Giants
The monarch who ruled the giants and, through their supremacy, Moramania. Corax held the position for approximately six centuries.

King's Hand
A high-ranking official of the giant monarchy. Following Corax's death, his Hand concealed what had happened and exercised power behind the throne.

Royal Oracle / Oracle Witch
The witch associated with the giant royal court who foresaw the end of the Age of Giants. She later forged Corax's remains into the twin magical blades inherited by Atlas and Prometheus.

Purple Witch
Elma's personal magical title. It does not denote a species or universal witch-ranking system.

Princess of the Fairies
Raina's royal position among the fairies. Her status also corresponds with the exceptional strength of her healing dust.

King of Dragons
The ruler associated with Moramania's dragons and the father of Dandylion.

Legendary Trio
The group consisting of Ori, Bernard and Dandylion: a giant clay golem, a travelling dwarf and a hybrid son of the King of Dragons.

Blue Cactus Knights
A group of knights who captured Apollo and Samina during the Sam Bridge Incident.

Important Historical Events

Birth of Atlas and Prometheus
The birth of the first hybrids, produced by Corax and Adina. The event kills Corax through the magical consequences of human–nonhuman hybrid reproduction and transforms Adina into a magically significant figure.

Sam Bridge Incident
An event involving Morrow, his human lover Melinda, Apollo, Samina and Prometheus.

While Melinda was dying from Crimson Ant Poison, the Blue Cactus Knights captured Apollo and Samina. Morrow chose to remain with Melinda despite knowing his companions might die. Prometheus intervened and saved Apollo and Samina but was unable to save Melinda.

Liberation of the Merfolk
Prometheus's campaign against the enslavement of Selene's people. His involvement in their liberation forms an important part of his relationship with Selene and demonstrates his larger attempt to change Moramania.

Places

Moramania
The magical kingdom in which the story takes place. Humans, fairies, giants and numerous other supernatural peoples inhabit it. Its history has been shaped by conflict between races and the long domination of the giants.

Land of the Giants
The principal territory associated with the giants.

Witches' Forest
A region associated with Moramania's witches and Elma's past.

Forgotten Metal Valley

The island containing Adina's grave. Atlas travels there seeking the magical power within her remains.

Grey Water Cave
A location within Moramania mentioned in connection with the characters' travels.
