Fourteen-year-old Dave is left home alone when an explosion tears through the nearby woods. After hearing a woman scream, he ventures out to investigate and discovers an injured deputy hiding from a serial killer stalking the area.

Dave secretly shelters the deputy and becomes involved in the hunt, using his intelligence and knowledge of the woods to stay one step ahead of the killer. But as the danger closes in, strange details begin to suggest that Dave is hiding something far more disturbing than the murderer they are hunting.

The killer may be the monster everyone is looking for—but he is not the monster in the woods.
